Our commitment

We have zero tolerance for child abuse, grooming, exploitation, neglect or harassment. Every child under 18 has the right to safety, dignity, privacy, inclusion and a voice, regardless of culture, Aboriginality, disability, language, gender or family circumstances.

We recognise the particular risks in photographing, filming, storing and publishing children's images. We take responsibility for safe conduct, equipment, files and decisions made by us or people engaged by us, including when working for families, schools, clubs or commercial clients.

How we protect children

We plan safe locations, activities and poses, use visible interactions and appropriate adult supervision, and stop if a child is distressed or unsafe. We never record children in toilets, change rooms or during intimate care, and we maintain professional boundaries.

We obtain appropriate guardian permission and seek the child's age-appropriate agreement. We respect a child's refusal and treat participation, client delivery, public sharing and our own promotional use as separate permissions.

We assess role-specific Working with Children Checks, child-performer authorities and venue rules. Assistants and contractors must follow our child-safety requirements. We limit access to images and footage and do not publish identifiable children for promotion without separate permission.

Speaking up and responding

Children and adults may tell us if something feels unsafe. We listen respectfully, act promptly, protect privacy and do not penalise genuine complaints. We take appropriate protective and reporting action.

You may report concerns to the contact below or approach Police or a child-protection agency directly. Call 000 for immediate danger or the NSW Child Protection Helpline on 132 111 if a child may be at risk of significant harm.

Accountability and review

Rebecca Jenkin, Owner and Child Safety Lead, oversees this commitment and the accompanying Child Safe Policy. We comply with applicable law, use the NSW Child Safe Standards to guide our practice and review our approach at least annually and after significant concerns.
